Join our report launch webinar – Know Your Rights: How EU Directives Protect Trans People article, socio-economic rights, non-discrimination, trans activists

Our latest report aims to empower trans communities to better understand and claim their fundamental rights. It also helps legal professionals, equality bodies, and policymakers to understand their legal obligations to ensure equal protection. This is especially urgent under EU law following the landmark Commission v Hungary (C-769/22) ruling.

The session will cover the report's core findings, offer a legal analysis of key EU Directives, and include an interactive Q&A session.

Key topics

- Equality Bodies Directives (2024/1500 & 2024/1499): An overview of the EU Directives, which give national equality bodies more independence and stronger powers to investigate and support victims of discrimination.
- Pay Transparency Directive (2023/970): Exploring the mechanisms that require employers to be more open about pay levels and structures, helping close gender-based pay gaps and enforce the principle of equal pay for equal work.
- Directive on Combating Violence Against Women and Domestic Violence (2024/1385): A look at EU-wide protections addressing online harassment, hate speech, and gender-based violence.
- Key CJEU Jurisprudence: Unpacking recent EU case law, e.g., Commission v Hungary (C-769/22), which clarifies how fundamental protections based on 'sex' can extend to gender identity.
